

Nominate a rising leader today

The Canadian Gas Association (CGA) is proud to launch WiNG – Women in Natural Gas: a year-long leadership development program designed to elevate the next generation of women leaders across Canada’s gas energy sector.

This three-part program focuses on advancing leadership skills, strategic thinking, and professional growth through meaningful mentorship, peer connection, and hands-on learning.

By nominating a participant, your organization invests in leadership development that will have a ripple effect across your teams and the energy sector.

Why nominate?

Develop strength-based leadership: Help participants identify their strengths, address areas for growth to become more effective, motivational leaders.

Accelerate performance: Equip emerging leaders with the tools to communicate effectively, build influence, and lead with confidence.

Build a lasting network: Participants will form deep professional connections and join a growing community of women leading the future of energy.

Program overview

Module 1: In-Person (October 2026)	Held during CGA’s Energy Nexus & ATC conference in Toronto, this day-and-a-half session will enable participants to explore the full energy business cycle and establish leadership foundations while networking with top industry leaders.
Module 2: Virtual (February 2027)	A coach-supported, interactive session focused on building a personal strategic plan for professional growth.
Module 3: In-Person (June 2027)	Hosted at CGA Academy, this session will help participants sharpen their leadership skills, communicate with confidence, and put their growth plans into action in real-world contexts.

Nominate a rising woman leader today.

Questions or ready to nominate?

Email us:
Meeta Singh
Director of Communications
Canadian Gas Association
msingh@cga.ca